TERRIBLE SCENE AT A FIRE.
MONTREAL, June 19.—A disastrous fire took place yesterday evening in the Pulp Company's works in Wellington-street. Over 100 girls, whose escape was cut off by the flames, flume themselves from the fourth storey of the building. Some were caught on mattressee or in the arms of the crowd below, but many were terribly injured, and it is rumoured that five were killed.

COLLAPSE OF A BRIDGE.

NEW YORK, June 19.—The section bridge leading from the river wall front to the Hudson-square Park, Hoboken, gave way last night and precipitated upwards of forty people into the water. They were rescued without any serious injury. It is impossible, however, to say whether any persons were drowned or not, and inquiries are being made to see if anybody is missing.

MASSACRE OF COWBOYS.

EL Pass (TEXAS), June 18.—News of a massacre of cowboys by Indians has just reached here. Ten cowboys were encamped on Monday near a creek running through an extensive cattle ranche, when they ware stigeted by a band of thirty or forty Indians.

Transposing pianofortes are no novelties, some folks suppose. When well in my teens I hired one, which could be raised or lowered from one to four semitones by pressure of a hidden spring. Its qualities were concealed from every one but myelf, until I experimented on a hated rival, who not only paid attentions to my "fairest of the fair," but sang my best tenor songs to his own accompaniment. His dismay when he found himself screeching B fair, while he thought he was singing three semitones lower, refreshed me greatly, @ad extinguished Mosart's charming comic opers "Le Nozza di Figaro" was produced at the Boyal Italian Opera last Wednesday, with a strong cast. M. The "professional matinée" of "New Lamps for Old," given at Terry's on Tuesday, was very successful. The house was crowded, and everybody was enthusiastic over play and players. Among those present were eight members of the Daly Company, by whom "New Lamps" will be played in America. Mr. Wyndham had a boz, and old Mrs. Stephens came out of her retirement to see the piece for the sake of her former association with Miss Grahame. Miss Kate Borke and her husband, Mr. Courtice Pounds, Mr. Fred Terry, and Mr. Haydn Coffin were also among the spectators. Miss Grahame made a special success in the long and claver speech she has to deliver in Act II.

Not without reason, some of the cyclins papers are taking notice of the very scanty costumes affected by racing men. Not to put too fine a point on it, cases of absolute indecency have become far from uncommon, putting the much maligned Zee altogether in the shade. It behoves the N.C.U. to nip this evil in the bud atonce, by prescribing a racing costume complying with the prescriptions of decency. Unless this is done, we shall soon see some sprinters appearing in the costume of Adam before the Fall. A little while back, I heard one of these worthies regret that social conventionalities compelled him to confine his manly limbs in a pair of racing drawers. "But for all the good they are, be triumphantly remarked," Which was a tried.

POLICE GRIEVANCES.

Captain WALTER JAMES has done ublic service by publishing a carefully sary that the law should be amen ompiled memorandum, showing both why the metropolitan police are dissatisfied and what requires to be done to remove their discontent. Many people assume eme of pensions meets all legiting requirements of the force. They will be surar surprised to learn that, except in one partiyears service, but with this single between the undertaker and the perception, the new regulations run on all fours with the old. The sums on all fours with the old. The sums of $60 or $10 are enormous. instance, while the proposed code abolishes retirement after twenty-eight years service on a pension of one pound a week. It will be seen, therefore, that the police have solid cause to be dissatisfied with an have solid cause to be dissatisfied with an entirely imaginary improvement of their in the citation of the Company's Receiving Omocs and Stations.

HY. LAMBERT, General Manager.

lings a week, and the first-cla with their respective re segment the cost of the force. But the governing question is, after all, that of fairness and justice between employer and employed. No increase of pay has been given to the force since 1872, a period during which the cost of living in London wages; on the contrary, it has told to his diandvantage by increasing the cost of living at every point. Nor should it be forgotten that the duties of a metropolitan forgotten that the united constable are far more ardu r some substantial addition to the stable's salary, and we feel assured that the public would much prefer liberality to stinginess in all departments of police

SMALL HOLDINGS.

Those who believe in the reality of the benefits to be conferred upon the agricultural labourer by the institution of small holdings, will be pleased to learn that the report of the select committee affirms their importance and recommends their extension. At the same time, the committee would only do this in an ex-perimental way, and would not have the State advance were their district. tate advance more than five millions as purchase money for that purpose. For our own part, we do not say that it would not be worth while to try any reasonable experiment with a view to increasing the number of small landowners throughout the country. Nevertheless, we will say to the extension of the system of allot-ments, rather than to that of small hold-ings, that the agricultural labourer should look with hope and confidence for a real improvement in his position. And the reason is plain enough. The allotment holder is a labourer in receipt of wages, that is to say, with an assured means of liyelihood, who reats a bit of land at a low rate and makes what he can out of it in his spare time. If the he can out of it in his spare time. If the venture turns out well, so much the better; if not, there is no great harm done. In the case of a small holding hings are very different. Here he is starting as a small farmer on his own starting as a small farmer on his own account. Having no capital on which to fall back in the event of a succession of bad years, he is absolutely at the mercy of the seasons. Of course, if he has the luck to have exceptionally good times at the outset he may do well for a space, though one or two bad seasons are pretty sure to break him. Is it, then, worth while for the agricultural labourer to try to raise himself from the secure position of an allotment holder to that of the miniature farmer? Farming is precarious miniature farmer P Farming is precarious work at the best, even for the solid man of capital. It is likely to be absolutely fatal ninety-nine times out of a hundred to the man who has no money behind him.

PROTECTION FOR CHILDREN

Shocking it is that parents should be found, in this age of boasted civilisation, who will deliberately murder their own young children for the sake of obtaining the few paltry pounds for which their little lives have been insured. Yet, such being the unquestionable fact—for no person who reads the newspapers can be unaware of it—it is imperatively necesto frustrate the murderous avarice of such unnatural parents. The bill dealing with infant insurance, which passed the second reading in the House of Lords on Monday, is quite on the right lines, but it will require amendment in committee. The law at present allows a maximum in-surance of £6 for a child under 5 years, and of £10 for one from 5 to 10. The bill surprised to learn that, except in one particular, it leaves the situation practically proposes that such insurance money shall

The only thing to allowed by law to 30s. or £2, so that it should not much more than suffice to pay the undertaker's bill. Until that is done
